we are spiritual beings having a human experience.”

Welcome to “Conscious Spirituality - In Search of Truth.” My name is Philip Crouch and I live in Hobart, Tasmania, a beautiful part of this world.

If you are just beginning to tread a path to conscious spirituality, there can be many challenges, opportunities and spiritual discoveries. However finding a pathway that’s suitable for you is not always easy and will most likely be different to the path that others follow.

Some people suggest that all you need to do is have a strong religious belief, meditate on a mountain top, read a thousand books, attend continuous workshops (often expensive ones) or find an enlightened guru or teacher. I believe these sorts of pathways can be severely limiting, and not always satisfying.

It’s what actually inspires a person, at whatever age, to intentionally start exploring conscious spiritual pathways – using intuition, reasoning and thinking abilities – that really matters. Any new-found inner spiritual or practical knowledge can readily contribute to your spirit journey experiences, and to your personal relationships with others in the community. It can open inner doorways to your own belief in the Great Spirit, Universal Mind or God (however you might conceive this).

My own journey consciously began in 1973. That’s when I experienced my first precognitive dream which fully manifested itself the following year.

It was a real epiphany for me and totally transformed life as I knew it. I can honestly say that I’ve never looked back in my search for Truth from that point on.

I call myself a survivalist – that is someone who fully accepts being a spirit here, now, and hereafter.

Beyond the five senses of a human form, I believe our consciousness ('the total sum of us') can always be expressed at any time, even beyond the physical transition known as death.
